

TAKE 5

The incredible places, people and products that Burlingtons Club members are talking about this season...

FOR ART'S SAKE

From old masters to contemporary game-changers, great art will always stand the test of time and, as London's galleries and auction houses start to embrace the digital age, investing into blue chip masters has never been more exciting. Enter ARTCELS, a new initiative launched by the House of Fine Art's (HOFA) Elio D'Anna and commodities trader Gijs de Viet. ARTCELS's entirely digital exhibition, XXI, is the first asset-based contemporary art exhibition, and offers investors shares in famed rare artworks by artists including KAWS (whose Blame Game Portfolio is pictured left and above), Damien Hirst, Retna, Jeff Koons and Banksy. Picture perfect!

ROOM WITH A VIEW

Located on the prestigious and historic St Barbara Bastions, Iniala Malta (left and right) is a lavish five-star hotel in the heart of Malta's capital of cool, Valletta, opening on 10 September. We love the design style of this opulent 23 suite property, spread across four traditional Maltese townhouses (and their incredible ancient vaults) and with views across the Grand Harbour from its chic rooftop restaurant. The décor blends urban design with a level of luxury befitting the UNESCO-awarded town, and is the perfect base from which to explore the old-world charm and rich history of this sunny island.

RAISE A GLASS

No celebration could be complete without a fine glass of champagne in hand and, for us, Perrier-Jouët's Belle Epoque 2011 cuvée (right) is the perfect balance of fruit and fizz to raise a toast to our first issue and the launch of the Burlingtons Club. To add to your own festivities, table service will resume at the Perrier-Jouët Champagne Terrace at Harrods (below) this summer, ready for visitors to reward themselves for a shopping spree well done, or simply to enjoy the wonderful views of Knightbridge, all while enjoying a glass of bubbly and a delicious variety of small plates. Cheers!
